10:30 AM to 12:00 PM	2nd Round of Workshops All workshops on Hill Country Level
Break Through Technology Barriers using AI Sasan Sadat-Sharifi, Vice President of Technology and Process Improvement with Workers Assistance Program, Inc.	Thanks to AI, the sky is now the limit for improving the technology of your organization. But few IT teams are taking advantage of these powerful, low-cost AI tools. Are we putting up with old technology barriers that have already been broken? Learn how to partner with your IT team to drive successful technology upgrades. Moderator: Rick Dielman
The Mediation Advantage: 12 Practical Payoffs for Labor–Management Grievances Stephanie Haynes and Myla Hite, Transformation WRX™	Grievances don’t have to be a slow march to arbitration. In this fast-paced, practical session, experienced mediators will lead labor and management advocates through exploring a dozen concrete reasons to take a grievance to mediation—and how doing so can protect relationships, reduce cost, and produce outcomes both sides can live with. Grounded in field-tested grievance-mediation principles, we’ll look at how mediation creates space for an exchange of information and perspectives, ensures people feel heard, and keeps the process moving toward resolution—often by surfacing the “real” workplace issues beneath the stated dispute. This presentation emphasizes how grievance mediation can resolve disputes through productive collaboration by emphasizing communication, problem-solving, and shared solutions. Participants will walk away with a clear, advocate-friendly rationale for mediation, including how a neutral can reality-test positions, help parties spot logic gaps (including their own), support graceful off-ramps, maintain procedural fairness, and encourage problem-focused (not person-focused) solutions—while preserving flexibility and confidentiality Moderator: Chris Blanton
Partnership and Practice: Healthier Leadership and Workplace Wellness Martha Rice, Owner/Founder of Complete ‘N Him and Professional Certified Life and Mental Health Coach	In a time marked by burnout, disconnection, and workplace stress, this session explores partnership-driven strategies that strengthen leadership, workplace wellness, and organizational culture. Attendees will gain practical tools to unite people, purpose, and performance while building healthier, more resilient, and people-centered workplaces where both employees and organizations can thrive. Moderator: Assigned Virginia Perez
